This note is a follow-up to the webinar (which we were unable to connect to) from last Thursday on the new Federal Funding Accountability and Transparency Act (FFATA) reporting requirements. We were notified after the session was scheduled to start that the viewing system could not handle the number of registrants that were signed up for viewing. It was not clear why this notice did not go out earlier. The webinar was recorded and has now become available through the USAspending.gov website. If you click on the link <http://www.usaspending.gov/learn?tab=What%27s+New> and then click on the 'FFATA Town-hall held on September 23, 2010 recorded webinar' link, you can bring up the session. There are also other links on that page which will provide additional information on the new FFATA reporting requirements. You may need to install / upgrade Windows Media Player to view/hear the session. The fast forward and rewind capabilities were not initially available when the site came up, but appear to be working now. If you are having trouble with these capabilities, you may want to download the file by right-clicking on the file and using the Save Target As option to save the file to your computer and view it from there. This webinar and the other informational links should begin to provide us with the information needed to ensure the State's compliance with these new requirements. If there are questions as we move forward, feel free to contact State Accounting and we will assist where we can.
